

RIYADH, April 26 (SPA) - King Khaled Sunday received the 19th annual report of the Saudi Arabian Monetary Agency presented by SAMA's governor Sheikh Abdul Aziz Al Quraishi. Second Deputy Premier and commander of the National Guard, Prince Abdullah, Sheikh Muhammad Aba-Al Khail, minister of finance and national economy, and highranking officials witnessed the presentation of the SAMA's special report to the King.

The annual SAMA report disclosed that over the ten-year period, the Kingdom's real growth domestic product (GDP) had nearly trebeld with a remarkable feat of Saudi economy that also showed a rise of nearly three-and-a-half times for non-oil GDP

The epoch-making decade in the country's economic history, the report said has benefited all sectors of the economy and all sections of the population.

The report revealed that the Kingdom's development plan (1395-1400) came to a successful conclusion in Jumad Thani 1400 (May, 1980). The report said the non-oil GDP rose at the rate of 10.7 per cent during the first plan period. During the second plan period the economy registered a rate of growth of 15.7 per cent per anoum. The average for the decade in the rate of growth was thus 13.2 per ceni, the report said.

The report emphasized the Kingdom's determination to fight the local infladonary pressures. It said the Kingdom through some fiscal restraints bas successfully controled inflation. It said the actual government expenditures rose from SR 5.0 billion to SR 188.4 billion, a growth of 44 per cent per annum which accelerated development in all sectors of the economy. The report highlighted the efforts of the Saudi Arabian Monetary Fund, the Saudi Commercial and National Banks; Industrial and real estates, and development funds in boosting the national economy.

The report reviewed in detail achievements of the Kingdom in the fields of transport communications, agriculture, water resources, commerce industry electricity, education health and banking. It also bailed King Khaled's govern-ment's development plans to bring prosperity and welfare to the people in keeping with their long-cherished aspirations.

Following is the full text of the report: Growth of GDP

The non-oil real GDP rose at the rate of 10.7 per cent during the first plan period. During the second plan the economy performed even better with real GDP registered a rate of growth of 15.7 per cent per annum. The average for the decade was thus 13.2 per cent per annum. Real non-oil GDP rose nearly three-and-half times, a remarkable feat for an economy which was thought to bave low absorpove capacity in view of its inadequate infrastructure and frustrating bottlenecks.

The non-oil private sector real GDP rose at an annual rate of 9.6 per cent and 15.8 per cent during the first two plans. During the first plan period the public sector GDE rose at a rate substantially higher than that of the private sector, but in the second plan period the private sector outstripped the public sector. The active participation and robust growth of the private sector in the country is in keeping with the country's ideological orientation and the govern-ment's fina commitment to build the economy with the collaboration of the private sector.

Government Spending and Control of Inflation Actual government expenditures rose from SR 5.0 billion to SR 188.4 billion, a growth of 44 per cent per annum. This rise in government spending financed accelerated development in all sectors of the economy and helped change the face of Saudi Arabia beyond recognition. However, it also generated inflationary pressures, which, thanks to the fiscal restraint adopted by the government in the last three years of the second plan, the removal of supply bottlenecks, and the resources to subsidies on certain essential items, before the end of the Second Plan. It must, be emphasized that not all of the inflation in Sandi Arabia was domesocally generated but a substantial part of it was imported.

The fight against inflation having been won encouraged the government to boost expenditures in 1400/01 to SR 245 billion. an increase of 30 per cent over the actual of 188 billion in the previous year. This was a caudous beginning for the Third Plan period during which the government is determined not to allow the inflaitonary pressures to rise again. Hence imported inflation is expected to be the main source of inflation during the Third Plan period.

some important landmarks. A major policy development has been the Saudization of foreign banks to achieve Saudi majority participation. Sn far seven of the 10 foreign banks have been Saudized, thus raising the number of Saudi banks to nine, including the National Commercial Bank and the Riyad Bank which were originally established as Saudi banks.

The country's monetary system, which had been undergoing a transformation since

SAMA's establishment in 1952, crossed

The Saudization of foreign banks bas increased healthy competition among banks and led to an improvement in the range and quality of services offered by them. The number of branches of commer-cial banks has risen from 59 at the beginning of the First Plan to 215 at the end of 1400. In addition, the number of seasonal offices has also risen over the years and stood at 28 during the 1400 pilgrimage season.

Commercial bank credit to the private sector has risen from SR 1,614 million to SR 29,240 million over the decade at the annual rate of 33.5 per cent. When the growth of liquidity declared near the end of Second Plan SAMA intervened by bringing into action the weapon of statutory reserve requirements. These were lowered from 15 per cent against all deposits to 2 per cent against time deposits and 12 per cent against demand deposits, with effect from Ist Rajab 1399 (May, 27, 1979). The reserve requirement against demand deposits was further reduced to 7 per cent with effect from end Rabi 1, 1400 (Feb. 16.

Schmidt arrives on three-day visit

BONN, April 26 (AFP) - West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt Monday begins a three-day, official visit to Saudi Arabia he hopes will strengthen economic and political cooperation between the two countries.

Sauth Arabia is West Germany's biggest oil supplier providing 25 per cent of its needs, and West Germany's third biggest non-European customer, thus providing work for some 65,000 persons. Saudi Arabia is also West Germany's biggest creditor having lent nearly $10,000 million.

According to sources here, West Germany has not yet decided on supplying arms to

In Sidon, several fires broke out, an old man's home was reported hit and several houses were badly damaged. Sbops closed and city streets were soon deserted. One ship in Sidon harbor pulled out to sea. Witnesses said Israeli planes continued flying over Sidon after the raid, drawing heavy ground fire.

After the Israeli raid on Sidon, the governmeot hospital there confirmed that the raid was a beavy one, adding that it was still not possible to conduct rescue work without danger. The reports said the Israeli planes had made at least eight sweeps over the city, aiming at southern districts at a ome when people were in the streets enjoying the sunshine. Anti-aricraft weapons of the Palestinian-nationalist Lebanese joint forces went into action against the aircraft, the reports said. Israeli aircraft also made three sweeps Sunday over Beirut, provoking antiaircraft fire.

The state-run Beirut Radio said it was one of the beaviest Israeli air raids on Lebanon for a long time. Ten days ago, 12 persons were reported killed or wounded when the Israelis attacked the port of Tyre, south of Sidon. Four days later their planes struck at the Palestinian stronghold of Beaufort Castle

However, it appears West Germany might review its restrictive sales policy. West Germany is also anxious to strengthen Saudi Arabia's position in the Gulf for security reasons, and does not want to trail behind the United States, France and Britain which have promised to supply arms to Riyadh.

After the visit, Schmidt will go to the United Arab Emirates which also supplies West Germany with oil, before returning to Bonn Thursday evening.

errant drivers. The campaign revealed a number of offenses and the "negative" behavior" of drivers who deliberately flout the rules. Other serious offenses included rash and reckless driving.

COMMENT

By Abdullah Omar Khayyat Al Jazirah

The official's absence from his seat is an eminent problem that visitors most frequently confront at government offices. I had to travel to Riyadh quite a few times in connection with a certain case at some office. Whenever I called at the office, I was surprised to notice that the official concerned was either absent that day or came and disappeared like a lump of salt in the water!

I am not the only one to complain, there are many who suffer from this tendency by the officials. The matter already has carned public resentment and engaged the attention of high officials who remain invariably anxious to see the public problems solved as speedily as possible.

Sometime ago, the newspapers had reported that Crown Prince Fahd had ordered all ministries and government departments to observe office hours meticulously with a view to ensuring continuity in work with a good measure of efficiency and satisfaction. The order had been issued on the basis of a report Interior Minister Prince Naif had submitled on the phenomenon of the official's absence from work. The report had indicated that the matter produced an adverse effect on the level of output, while the public interests suffered a great deal as a result of the stacking of cases and long delays in making decisions on them.

Such a serious concern had, in fact, become quite inevitable, since the neglect of duty had assumed such proportions that even the popular expression "come tomorrow" had lost its significance. It was replaced by long promises which some-times stretched into a score of days, subjecting the visitors to the inconveniences of travel and its expenses.

The royal order bad been issued to slamp out this phenomenon in the interest of citizens and all those who have to call at the ministries and government departments in connection with official matters.

"The week did not reduce traffic accidents except in the downtown areas," he said. "Accidents in the highways remained disturbing." Besides, the volume of traffic in the daytime was lower than at night because drivers without the proper papers tried to avoid getting caught in the day and preferred to drive at night.

The campaign included the distribution of booklets, press and television programs in which leading traffic officers took part to sbow the duties of drivers and pedestrians. They said that speeding was the main killer and cause of accidents on the country's roads.

In related developments, a grand festival was held by the Eastern Province Traffic Department in Dammam Saturday to mark the conclusion of this year's successful traffic

Diplomat meets Rafsanjani

Britain seeks relations with Iran

TEHRAN, April 26 (R) - Britain's senior diplomat in Iran met parliament speaker Hojatoleslam Hashe mi Rafsanjani to discuss relations hetween the two countries, broken off last September, British officials said.

They said Saturday Stephen Barrett, who heads a skeleton staff of six diplomats here. had a "useful and friendly chat" with the Iranian clergyman. The official Pars News Agency, however, quoted Rafsanjani as telling Barrett that the Iranian people are dissatisfied with Britain's stand during the 444-day crisis over the U.S. hostages.

It said this was the parliament speaker's reply to what it called Barrett's expression of interest in expanding relations. The British official said there was no question of a formal proposal to normalize links, though Britain hoped to move in this direction.

The British embassy currently flies the Swedish flag and all diplomats are technically attached to the British interests section of that nation's mission.

Meanwhile, a British husinessman has escaped from Iran after stowing away on a London-hound flight, The Sunday Telegraph reported.

The paper said 51-year old John Booth, a

Iranian women demand more rights

TEHRAN, April 26 (R) - Some 15.000 black-robed women Saturday converged on Tehran's closed university and called for more rights for women in society. But the women, also endorsed a recent government order compelling those working in government offices to cover their heads.

They demanded special programs for women on radio and television and called on parliament to pass legislation giving them a greater role in society.

Under the Islamic Republic's new constitution, women are granted equal rights in society, but the details have vet to be worked out. The rally, marking the birthday of Fatimah, the daughter of the Prophet Muhammad, was organized by the clergy-led Islamic Republican Party (IRP).

These celebrations, the newspaper Tehran Times said Saturday, had nothing to do with the woman's day celebrated last March 8 in Europe and America, "a day of bumiliation, sham freedom, ... imprisonment and submission to the oppressor." "Today is the day of the birth of woman, her honor and her entry into society in an outstanding role," in the words of Ayatollah Khomeini himself.

Fifty Islamic revolutionary organizations had called for the demonstration here, in the course of which the women, squatting on the ground of the campus of the university, raised fists and repeated slogans proposed from a dais, such as "Women's veils are firearms burning the hearts of the infidels."

Resolutions read into a microphone pledged women's support for the Imam. "supreme guide of the revolution," to "Islam's army fighting the superpowers of the East and West," to the judiciary and to the militant clergy.

member of the Western husiness community in Tehran, returned to Britain last Monday after eluding military guards at Tehran airport and hiding in a small compartment beneath of the pilot's cahin. The foreign office had no immediale comment.

The Sunday Telegraph said Booth had been refused an exist permit by Iranian authorities although he was free to move around the country. It did not say why he had . not been allowed to leave Iran. Once at Heathrow, the paper said, Booth jumped from the plane and was stopped hy Iran air officials who handed him over to the airport police for possible prosecution. But they took to action and he was allowed to go free.

CAIRO, April 26 (R) - Dutch Foreign Minister Christopher van der Klaauw has confirmed the Soviet Union had launched a peace initiative in the Middle East. Klaauw, president of the European Economic Community (EEC) council of ministers, told reporters here that the Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat told him about the Soviet initiative based on holding an international conference to resolve the Middle East problem.

SE OF

"I told Arafat holding an international conference must be at the end of the peace process, not at the beginning. We must first find the basis and the principles on which peace could be built," the Dutch minister said. Klaauw, who met Arafat last week in Damascus, said: "If the Soviet Union wants an international conference, they can have it, but at a later stage not now."

TheDutch minister made his remarks following meetings with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali, He said his discussions focussed on the European role in the Middle East.

He said the discussions dealt with the Palestinian right to self-determination, the Jerusalem problem, security for all parties and Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab territories. Klaauw also said he would visit Israel where he hoped to meet with the West Bank leaders, Saudi Arabia, Algeria, the Gulf states and the Vatican.

He said any European proposals would be formulated in "close cooperation with our, main ally, the United States." Ali, standing at his side, told reporters "We have the same

Ethiopia, Kenya, Sudan to study economic pact

ADDIS ABABA, April 26 (AFP) -Ministers from Ethiopia, Kenya and Sudan gather bere Monday to discuss forming a loose economic union that will highlight Somalia's isolatioo in the Horn of Africa.

A fourth country, Djibouti, which has been trying to position itself for a mediating role in the region was invited to the three-day meeting but apparently will not come. Ethiopian Foreign Minister Feleke Gedle Giorgis told a news conference Saturday that he, Kenvan Foreign Minister Robert Ouko and Sudanese Minister of State Spleiman Mirghani would attend.

Col. Feleke said the differences between Somalia and Ethiopia, at loggerheads over Somali claims on Ethiopia's Ogaden region since 1977, would not be a direct subject during the three days of the talks.

He binted that any country in the region would be welcome to join the regional grouping in future, provided it declared its commitment to the charters of the United Nations and the Organization of African Unity (OAU). This statement appeared to be an invitation to Somalia to drop what Ethiopia and Kenya view as expansionist designs on the Ogaden and on Kenya's northern province, both largely inhabited by ethnic Somalis.

The charters of the two international bodies refer to the principles of selfdetermination within recognized international boundaries.

TIES DEEPEN

Construction of the construction

Chancellor Helmut Schmidt starts his official visit today as the leader of a friendly Western state with which the Kingdom enjoys excellent relations and is eager to develop further. There are no problems between the two countries and there have been practically none since the crisis of 1965 when the U.S. forced Germany to ship arms to Israel. The U.S. action led the Arab states to sever relations with Bonn while some of the countries established diplomatic relations with East Germany for the first time since World War II. Since then Germany and the Kingdom have been drawing closer in mutual interests, and have exchanged visits at the highest level - promoting both political and economic relations until the Kingdom has now become Germany's major trading partner (outside Europe) and the principal source of oil. The Germans, not to be outpaced, have increased their exports 25 times since 1973. But it is Saudi Arabia's policy and moderation that bave attracted German admiration which prompted Schmidt to describe the country as "an excellent element of stability for the Middle East." However, trade alone is not going to be the crucial test of Saudi Arabian-German friendship. The Kingdom conducts more business with the U.S. but the latter has not seen fit to amend its attitudes and policies toward the all-important Middle East question including the future of the occupied Arab lands. Admittedly, Germany is less influential than the U.S., and in fact still suffers from American foreign policy, but its importance lies in being a major power of the European Economic Community in which it musters a substantial weight in shaping foreign policy. Together with France, which has been braver than other members in speaking out about the Middle East problem, it can bring about a new climate of European public opinion that is demonstrably fairer than the American official commitment. The U.S. administration and Congress may be unsettled by uch a trend but it will serve to win Arab appreciation for such a courageous policy. And since this will be done through the EEC, Germany will stand little risk of being singled out for blame by the U.S. It will be naive though, and it is so, to expect the so-called European initiative to be of decisive substance in the conflict, but its interest lies in being a departure from the U.S. line of conduct and a condemnation of its blinkered view of the whole issue. Bilateral relations developed smoothly and rapidly without a hitch — until the German press published what amounted to a Saudi Arabian arms shopping list from Germany. No official request has been issued according to Schmidt, and the Saudi Arabian government bastened to allay the fears of the German government by declaring that it was careful to avoid embarrassing it by any demand for defense sales. In order not to embarrass the Chancellor on the eve of his visit, Saudi Arabia would prefer to leave the matter up to him to raise during the talks here. The West considers Saudi Arabia and the Gulf region as perhaps the most important source of energy and the cornerstone of Western survival for the foreseeable future. But it balks when the Kingdom requests to buy arms from them for its defense and to safeguard its own interests and those of its friends. The U.S. Congress threatens to block Reagan's recommendations, the Germans worry about Israeli reaction while others make sure that Israel already bas something better in band than that requested by an Arab country. Schmidt's visit will be worthwhile in further "deepening our mutual understanding" as Foreign Minister Prince Saud had said. He will hear directly from the leadership what be wants to know about the region and the challenges it is facing while the government here will know at first hand what Germany has to say. Then it will be up to him to decide whether this region is important enough to be assisted to defend itself.

It's a time of testing in Poland

(Editor 's note: The writer is a lecturer, in organiza tional psychology .at Manchester University Institute of Science and Technology.)

By Dr. R. N. Ottaway

Poland today reminds the visitor of the turnoil of the American Civil Rights days. Discussions are going on everywhere. Everyone needs to be involved. Personal inconvenience is almost welcomed if it means being involved in the making of history. One member of the law faculty of the University of Warsaw told me that he was in a party meeting for five hours to draft a five-word statement on whether to endorse the use of force. This is typical of local party meetings.

During the week I was in Poland at the invitation of the academy of sciences, evidence of the activities of the independent union Solidarity became increasingly apparent. When I arrived there was no sign of the hotel staff identifying with the movement, except the voluntary han on the sale of alcohol in accordance with Solidarity's request.

The next evening the waiters were wearing Solidarity badges. The day after that, the botel had two Polish flags outside — indicating, "We are ready to strike." The balf-day general strike of March 27 was described as a "premonition strike", a taste of what could follow. There was a ritual tone to itall. It was only on March 31 that the threatened indefinite strike, due to start that day, was called off.

The successful warning strike was needed in order for the entire population to learn new behavior - planned, open opposition to the policies and practices of the authorities. It was a successful strike in the sense that workers did stop work, the leaders of Solidarity were in command, the government acted with restraint and judgment and the party watched. All groups are trying to find the point at which others think they have gone too

Kazimierz Woycicki,editor of WIEZ, a journal of the Catholie Club of Intelligentsia, says: "We don't know where this point is."

There are several groups involved in the Polish crisis. The government and its massive hureaucracy must take into account union demands while they struggle to revive the economy and at the same time please the party. The government has never before faced open, legal opposition. The incident at Bydgoszcz, when union leaders were heaten up by police, shows the different roles of all sides. One angry young Solidarity member described the situation as "important because of the explicit police violence. In the past these beating, have been by "unidentified" attackers."

The party works through its Central Committee and Politburo, and its members seem the most gloomy about the future. Many think the Russians will intervene. Some of this gloom arises over the constant postponing of the next party congress. Others are anxious because Solidarity is rejecting the Socialist commitment to planning and rational modeling of problems and solutions. A future without a plan is worrying for the committed party member Dr. Jan Strzelecki, an intellectual adviser to the strikers, described their situation this way: "The older union members tried socialism without opposition for 30 years and it didn't work. The young don't feel part of the party and traditional unions."

The party and its government machinery are sed on rational, planned roles and activities, idarity has had intellectual help from many quarters but in the end it has been most shaped by its experiences. More than 100 independent, self-governing unions have registered with the government since the strikes at the Gdansk shipyards last summer. They vary in size and maturity. They are held together by a fledgling organization which does not even have elected officers. Lech Walesa and others are serving what amounts to a probationary period. The burgeoning, ill-defined membership is testing them. The biggest factor in the situation is the common man. Everyone wants to see what he will accept. As his aspirations grow, this test becomes more difficult. Basically, it seems he still wants to get on with his life at a cost he can afford. He does not want the Russians to interfere. The key test is whether he will support the new modes of behavior, conform to the old ways or stand apart from the process of change altogether. At the moment it looks as if he has opted for a middle course of demanding more openness in the system and he thinks that Solidarity is the way to do

Secret plan to smash Solidarity

By Mark Frankland

LONDON -Gen. Is ruzelski's speech to the Polish parliament recently and his unheard of, for East Europe, threat to resign unless he gets a two-month ban on strikes, show the Polish government moving fast to prove itself in the eyes of the Soviet Union. Evidence of just how far some Polish leaders would like to move was provided in a recent secret speech by Andrzei Zabinski, appointed politburo member and first party secretary in the major industrial and mining region of Katowice after the Gdansk strikes last

Zabinski, speaking privately to local militia and outuned a bringing the independent union movement Solidarity to heel and restoring party control. A tape of the speech was published last month in an independent trade union paper in south Poland. The plan has two parts. First, members of the dissident group KOR, some of whom advise Solidarity, are to he got rid of. Second, the party should influence Solidarity by making sure its members stay in the new union:" We have to prevent a situatiion which will lead to party trade unions, limite" and small, and non party unions, which is to say, anti-party. Once this was done "the rest must be simply slowly broken up," ending "ideally" with the reunification of the Polish trade union movement "though this can take years."

the privileges of power. "They have to get a taste of power. We have to make quarters and meeting places available to them, and equip them with every LUXURY.

"I always keep saying this but let me repeat it here once again: I don't know bow many who would not get corrupted by power — it is simply a matter of time and degree.

"We can already see it among them. Easy access to money, taxi rides to Gdansk, telephone conversations, contacts with the secretary of the provincial party committee, with the deputy premier ... They begin to get extravagant with money ... so this is a correct policy."

The next aim would be to break up Solidarity's ity of the Polish Communists and the leader, Dr. Husak, declared Poland's to be "getting more acute."

Husak knows that he was only able reform-minded Czechoslovak party in 1968 after the Soviet invasion had hardline arguments unanswerable. The lovak Communists later drew up the "lesson had learned from this experience - this doe is their bible to this day - and it is no exagge to say that Poland's Communist reformers are against each and every one of those Czecho lessons.

The uncertainty, the feeling of drift, the catches in the commgs and goings of the leaders and their allies have their origin her Russians do not want to send their arm Poland. For that, they would bave to be ma like Zabinski they want evidence that the party, though unsupported by Soviet troops, how to "struggle." It will take more than a melodramatic the resignation by a military prime minister to con them of that. -- (ONS)

Professor Andrzej Straszak, at the Polish Academy of Sciences, says: "It's a time of testing. There will be more participation. I think we have come to a new era of partnership between independent trade unions and the Socialist government." The professor appears to be right as long as the Pope, Western opinion, largely from the United States, and the Russian Army remain in their present balance of forces to allow the Poles time to learn new behavior without external intervention.

Newspapers Sunday mostly led with a report oo the graduation of the 39th batch of cadets from the King Ahdul Aziz War Academy in Riyadh Satur-day. The function was chaired by Minister of Defense and Aviation Prince Sultan, who declared that the Saudi Arabian army is able to meet all challenges and that the military academies function as factories producing men prepared to take on the defense of the country. Meanwhile, AI Medina and Al Nadwa carried as lead stories the resumption of the Islamic Goodwill Committee's mission and Iran's "approval" of "some proposals" by the committee. Al Riyadh gave lead prominence to a report saying that helicopters of the Arab deterrent force have landed some forces near Phalangist militia positions on the peaks of Mount Sinnin, overlooking the Beqaa valley in Lebanon. The French presidential election formed the headline story in Al Jazirah newspaper.

Newspapers frontpaged the goodwill committee's decision to send PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and Secretary General of the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC) Habih Chatti to Baghdad to acquaint themselves with Iraq's views on the committee's latest proposals for a ceasefire between Iraq and Iran. Another prominent page one story concerned the Jerusalem Committee, which has recommended an international seminar on Jerusalem in Washington. The committee stressed the need to stamp out all differences among the Islamic states.

In an editorial on the Iraq-Iran armed conflict, A! Medina observed that both countries are in pressing need for bold decisions which they ought to take in the interest of peace, good-neighborliness, and Islamic fraternity. The paper said it was a matter of great satisfaction that Iran is reported to have agreed on some points proposed by the Islamie

One way to push KOR out of the union, Zahinski suggested, was to make its elimination a precondition for granting union requests. "The unions fight for ... access to the media and they will get it when they have learned that they have to dissociate themselves from KOR ... What we need is a statement that they would dissociate themselves from KOR which would in turn cause divisions in KOR."

Once separated from KOR it would be easier to work on Solidarity's leaders. They should be involved in "a thousand problems" including such tricky ones as deciding what workers are to be fired when mines and factories start to get rid of unnecessary labor (a point Gen. Jaruzelski repeated recently). "Let them to this untypical work." Solidarity leaders should also be softened up by Discussing Communist infiltration into the Middle East, Al Jazirah noted that an accord among the Arabs, the Enropeans, and the Americans on resisting Soviet expansionist designs does not necessarily mean that the Arabs should accept everything that Europe and America do in the Middle East. The paper did oot find any difference between the European and the American stances on the Middle. East. It said that their attitude is not very friendly toward the Arabs and that they are opposed to the just and right principles which form the backbone of all Arab demands. The paper further stressed the point that the present attitude of the West toward the Arab-Israeli conflict would ultimately provide an opening for Soviet expansionism in the Middle East, which would consequently give rise to Communist infiltration with all its heretic ideologies, into the lives of the region's people.

On the same subject, Al Nadwa noted that the European attitude toward the Middle East issue does not predict any independent and positive role that the West can play to find peace in the region. Surmising from the statements of European leaders, the paper said that any European move would eventually be linked to the American policy toward the Middle East, which would mean a further strengthening of the Camp David accords.

Al Riyadh dealt with the Lebanese situation and urged that any Arab move take into coosideration the fact that the summit talks between Syria and Lebanon had not been able to ease the crisis, which was evident from the latest developments and the deteriorating security situation in Lebanon. The

-dv-region organ give it back the branch union structure all the Polish unions had pre-Gdansk. It was ridiculous to group together 'miners and milliners" just because they worked in the same region.

"This is truly a soft spot for political attack. We have to attack. We simply have to attack now." (The thinking behind this is that branch unions will be easier to control.)

Zabinski was scathing about the performance of party members so far. "You comrades," he said to his audience of policemen, "are already doing extremely well but party activists have forgotten these fighting methods."

Zabiuski's approach is likely to be shared by other party leaders, including, no doubt, the tough talker Stefan Olszowski, who met Brezhnev during the recent Czech party congress in Prague, and hy many officials who have spent a satisfying lifetime in the party apparat. Nor would Brezhnev or other East European leaders be likely to quibble at it. The question now is: Can the ordinary Polish party member be, as Zabinski puts it, "taught seam"? The evidence from Poland is that the ordinary party member is in the mood to teach rather than be taught. Stanislaw Kania, the party leader, has already twice this month been hombarded with criticism at meetings of the party rank-and-file.

The other leaders have been through similar ordeals. In short the party is seized, at its base, by a mood for reform (secret, multiple choice elections; more power to ordinary workers) that no one foresaw last August. It is no surprise then that Brezhnev has expressed only qualified confidence in the abilputting an end to the Israeli assaults on Lebanon.

On the other hand, Okaz commented on the Academy, saying that Saudi Arabia is striving to at the same time trying to reinforce its naval and

PIGEON-BREEDERS: Gustav and Manni Heldt are PIGEON/BREEDERS in Oberhansen. West Germany. It has become a hobby for them which, they say, "me everything for us", At left, they are holding birds, and at right, standing with the medals they won in pigeon competitions.

- their feathered friends Pigeons

By Stefan Klein

OBERHAUSEN, West Germany, (INP) - As if by a hidden command, a dozen pigeons take nff from the roof in a wingflapping melee, form themselves intn a squadroo, circle over the house, climh steeply, fly a wide curve, then settle into a level flight in an easterly direction, heading toward the chimney stacks nf the Osterfeld colliery an coking plant. A few seconds later, the birds are mere dark specks in the milky-white sky over Oberhausen (West Germany). What ahnut the hird's eye-view? Do the pigenns recognize the features of the landscape below - Eisenheimer Strasse, the old pit house, the hack yard, the vegetable garden and their own "hnme", the black-painted pigeon-loft? Can they still see the two men dnwn here - Gustav and Manni Heldt heads thrown back, hands shielding their eyes as they scour the sky in search of their birds?

No, of course oot. On their swift flight, they've long since lost sight of the tiny pit colony of Eisenheim; perhaps they're already over Essen or even Battrop. But suddenly, they reappear, shooting toward home base; a sweeping turn, landing approach, air hrakes applied and there they are - hack on the loft roof, recovering terrestrial equilibrium, pecking corn. "They got away well today, didn't they Manni?" Gustav comments to his brother.

Gustav and Manni Heldt are pigeonhreeders. They have about 250 pigeons they wouldn't exactly say they "nwn" their feathered friends. "I'm attached to them," says Manni. "I could do without everything else — oot the pigeons." Manni is a big, sturdy fellow with blond, curly hair, almost apple-red cheeks and conspicuously big though rather soft hands. He works as a huilder's plasterer.

Years ago, he met with an accident, injuring his knee and spine. Manni is 39 and his brother Gustav 47. He's a different type. With his brushed-back dark hair, parted at the side Gustav looks like Ernst Kuzorra, the nld soccer star nf FC Schalke 04.

Thirty-one years of booe-grinding work as a mechanic at oearby Osterfeld colliery exacerbated an old spinal defect to such a degree that oow, at 47, he's an invalid and a pensiooer. Gustav and Manni have a seriously ill hrother, a former coal face worker turned into a bedridden wreck by two nasty accidents at Osterfeld. But they look after their disabled hrother well. Manni and Gustay have their own families too. But above all, they have their pigeons.

They grew up with "the birds." Pigeoos gradually became a hobhy for them which they say with one voice: "It means everything to us." Nn shiny automobiles for them, just Mopeds; every spare penny goes ioto the lofts, which have become bigger and bigger. Today, they hald more than 200 pigeons, far strangers an amnrphous dan. But Gustav points out: "Shnw me any bird you like. If 1 can't tell ynu the number on its ring without looking, you can take it away with you." Manni and Gustav never rush feeding time

DELIGHT: A pigeon takes delight in stand-ing on Manni's head.

Your hoss cracks a hoary joke you have heard scores of times hefore and to keep in his good books, you roar with laughter. But if your boss is smart, he will know what you are up to. All he has to do is study your eyebrows.

If you haven't raised them, according to behaviors experts, that means you're forcing a laugh. Scientists at Chicago University who have been examining the smile have come up with some conclusions that are nothing to laugh at."

Take the 'upper smile'. That's when your lips part just enough to show your upper teeth. It is the sort of smile people give when they are greeting frieods. But, say the scientists, if there is oo crinkling around the eyes at the same time you are probably just being polite or hypocritical. Your smart boss won't be fooled by that,

The great copper mystery

Lord Snowdon, the Duchess of Windsor, the Marquis of Bath, actresses Eva Gabor and Thora Hird, and cricketer Colin Cowdrey are all members of the Green Wrist Brigade. On their wrists glow the green splodges caused by wearing a copper bracelet to keep away rheumatism. Hundreds of thousands of people put faith in the copper band of hope, convinced that it will dn for them what the doctors can't - ward off the 'screws'. For many of them it seems to work.

How? Why? Nobody knows. That is the great copper mystery. One theory is that the hracelet balances copper deficiency, which is often associated with rheumatism and arthritis. Another is that the bracelet draws excess acid from the body - hence the green wrists. Uric acid is known to be involved in joint pain.

Doctors are highly sceptical. A spokesman for the British Rheumatism and Arthritis Association, who are experts in the field, says: "There is no medical evidence that copper bracelets work to cure rheumatism or arthritis."

But Thora Hird says: "Wearing a copper hracelet has really dnoe wonders for me." Dr. Allan St. J. Jixoo, author of the British Medical Associatioo's booklet Aches, Pains and Rheumatism, kills all hope. He says the only good effect of wearing a copper hracelet is that it prevents you from being pestered by well-meaning folk whn want you tol"

- if's an old-established and important ritual. Gustav always wears his old pit trousers in the loft- and a grey dustcoat. His favorite relaxing position is on a stool placed so that he can lean comfortably against the wall. He talks to the birds, calls, coaxes, whistles and, before one can even nutice, his voice takes on a soft note. "Come on, fatty, come oo." And they dn come to him, perch on his knee nr nn his shnulder and sometimes nn his head, which is why Gustav usually wears a cap when he's in the loft.

"There's real trust between us and the pigeons," he comments. And when Manni feeds the birds, he wears a warm, tender expression. "You can talk to pigeon just like a human and they are thankful and show it with love and tameness." Sitting in his hig, chunky hands, which usually still have a spattering of plaster, the pigeons look almost as if they're snuggling in a nest. Sometimes, Manni takes a peanut between his teeth and delights in having a pigeon peck it away from him.

He says: "When you come home from work, or when things are getting you down or you're having a row with the wife, you just go to the pigeon-loft and everything is okay again.

But the best part of it all for him is to peep into the breeding loft and see "how the little chaps are growing. It gives you hope somehow." This hope is invested in every young pigeoo — the hope that it will grow into a prize flier. The reward for all the effort, for sacrificing holidays, for all the money spent on birdseed and the constant repair and modemization of the loft is a pigeon which wins competitions.

"Knnkurs" is how the pigeon-breeders of the Ruhr district refer to the competitions for racing pigeoos, which always fly for a particu-lar cluh. The Heldt hrothers are members of a pigeon-hreeders' association calling itself Teure Heimat" ("Dear Hnme"). Io many nf the races, thousands of birds are entered. Throughout the Ruhr district, around 30,000 pigeon-breeders are evidence of the great popularity of the sport and its importance as a leisure activity. For several years now, the 'Teure Heimat' birds have been flying the same route.

To begin with, there are three shorter preliminary flights in April, then six prize flights in May and June in which the hirds are trans-ported up to 385 kms away from base. Finally, at the end of the racing season, there are extremely difficult flights, some of them starting io Denmark. The winner is the first pigeon to find its way back to its home loft. The maximum stake tn be wagered on ooe bird is DM 10.10 Pfennigs — "going the full way" is how the hreeders describe the top

Gustav and Manni place their stakes according to their judgment of individual birds in the preceding days and hnw well they have performed in training. Usually, they invest quite a lot of money.

Fresh disclosure N-plant leak hits 45 Japanese

TOKYO April 26 (AP) — The Japan Atomic Power Co., under fire for failing to report several accidents at its Tsuruga nuclear power plant including a major radioactive waste overflow last month, has disclosed that 45 workers were exposed to radioactive waste in another unreported mishap this January. Power company officials said on Jan. 19 and 21 radioactive materials dripped out of three holes in piping connecting two wastewater condensing tanks at the 357,000-kilowatt plant 320 kms west of Tokyo.

The Ministry of International Trade and Industry (MITI), which has heen investigating plant operations since it was disclosed last week 16 tons of radioative wastewater spilled out of a tank in a March 8 accident, and the January leak was small and confined to the tank room. MITI officials also said the 45 workmen involved in repairing the piping and cleaning up the waste were exposed to a maxinnum of 92 and an average of 55 millirems of radioactivity per day, under power company safety level of 100 millirems a day.

Officials of the Tokyo-hased power company said the leak was not reported because it was minor and occurred when the plant was closed for a periodic safety check. However. MITI officials, who newspapers said were "chagrined" hy the latest in a series of revelations of slipshod operations at the Tsuruga plant, ordered an immediate investigation into the leak

The Yomiuri Shimbun, a major daily, also reported that the radioactivity of the glutinous waste material was so high that work to fill up the holes had to be carried out with workers rotating every five seconds. The accident was the fourth this year that Tsuruga plant officials failed to report to the government in what has become a major scandal in this nuclear-sensitive nation. The plant was closed on April 1 when a worker disclosed that cracks in a cooling water tank on Jan. 10 and Jan. 24 had allowed the release of small quantities of radioactive materials. The company had failed to report these two incidents at the time and they did not become evident to the public at large until a major spill, the third unreported by the company, was revealed a

Last week, after it was found that seawced near the plant recorded levels of radioactivity ten times normal, plant officials revealed that on March 8 a worker forgot to shut off a valve and 16 tons of radioactive sludge poured out of a storage tank, with some seeping into the sewage system running to the tank. A total of 56 workers were engaged in cleaning up the spill, but the company has denied that any worker was exposed to dangerous levels of radioactivity.

Meanwhile, newspapers reported that Koichi Takagi, mayor of Tsuruga city, a port town of 63,000 about 12 kms from the power plant, said that with the series of accidents we can no longer trust the government."

Whale recovers from pneumonia, released to sea

BABYLON, New York, April 26 (AP)-To cheers of some 10,000 whale-wishers, a sperm whale, recovered from a near-fatal bout with pneumonia, was released to the open sea Saturday. Biologists who nursed the 23-foot (7 meter) baby mammal back to health feit he had "recovered enough to have a good chance for survival at sea," said Jack Peters, a spokesman for the Okeanos Research Foundation. Named Physty hy handlers — a play on the Latin name for his species and pronounced "Feisty" - the whale was helieved to be the first sperm whale ever kept alive in captivity.

Earlier in the day, Peters had said that the whale, which suffered from a strain of pneumonia also common to humans, would not be released until Sunday because of rough seas and high winds. However, by early afternoon Peters said "things calmed down significantly' and Physty was berded out of a marina on Long Island while spectators lined up at a state park urged him on.

When the moment of truth came Physty hesitated. "when we opened the net he didn't head right for the sea." Peters said, "he hesitated and then made a slow left turn towards the inlet." Five Coast Guard boats and about six others were on hand to help Physty on his

Peters said a motor boat followed directly behind the whale "to keep him moving" while others kept him from going in the wrong direction. The researchers said Physty moved at a slow but steady pace during his first 500 meters. Peters said several boats would follow him about 70 to 100 miles off shore to make sure he gets safely out to waters frequented by his species.

The whale, believed to he between three ' and five years old, was towed to the state park marina hy a Coast Gnard vessel April 16 after it tried to beach itself twice.

Waldheim to visit Moscow in May

UNITED NATIONS, April 26 (Agencies) - U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim "will be visiting Moscow in May" at the invitation of the Soviet Union, a U.N. spokesman has said. The announcement by Frank Barabas came one day after it was announced here that Waldheim would pay his first visit to President Ronald Reagan in Washington next Thursday, accepting an invitation from the United States.

Waldheim, in the last year of his second five-year term, and regarded as a candidate for re-election as secretary-general needs the assent of both superpowers if he is to have a third term.

Either of the two could veto him in the Security Council, expected to take up the nomination in December. The votes of nine of the Council's 15 members are required for numination and a simple majority vate in the General Assembly is needed for election. Britain, France and China also bave veto power in the Security Council.

A well-placed source who asked not to be identified said Saturday that after visiting Moscow, Waldheim would visit Portugal and Britain. Portugal is no longer on the council. ### National Farmers Union spokesman said. He also reported that early vegetables planted outside of greenhouses suffered severe damage and those grown in greenhouses will cost bousewives a lot more because farmers had to spend more on heating.

Royal Air Force rescue helicopters were ont in what was described as appalling weather conditions in search for stranded motorists. Snowplows were fighting a losing battle trying to keep main trunk roads-open between England and Scotland. The worst of the blizzards were confined to northern England, eastern Scotland, northern Wales, the Isle of Man and northern Ireland where Belfast airport was closed during the night by SBOW.

The weatherman said the April blizzards were the worst this century. He said they were caused by blasts of icy winds from the Arctic meeting a depression. A doubledecker bus in Manchester was blown off course by the winds and careened into the car of a milkman who was taken to hospital with a broken ann.

Ambulance men helped by a mountain rescue team struggled across fields blanketed with more than three feet of snow to a farm to bring to hospital a man who had suffered a heart attack. An ailing baby was evacuated to hospital from a farm in central Yorkshire to hospital in Harrogate by helicopter.

A helicopter evacuated a farmer his wife and two children from a farm in the mountains of the Isle of Man.

NEW YORK, April 26 (AP) - Seventeen persons have been arrested in Groton, Connecticut, for spilling bottles of blood at the launching of a nuclear attack submarine in one of many anti-nuclear weapons protests coordinated in dozens of cities around the United States.

The Saturday demonstrations, sponsored by the American Friends Service Committee, also focused on MX missile and Cruise missile installations as well as firms that make nuclear weapons components.

In Groton, about 600 demonstrators denounced the launching of the nuclear submarine Corpus Christi as blasphemous. Police said 17 persons were arrested, some of them for tossing bottles of blood on the sidewalk

LONDON, April 26 (R) - British space-watchers reported mysterious features about a Soviet satellite launched Saturday and suggested that it might be paving the way for a new advance in space flight by the Soviet Union. The launching was reported in Moscow by the Soviet news agency Tass, which described the satellite as number 1,267 in the Soviet Union's Cosmos series and said the equipment nn board was functioning normally.

The scientific equipment Cosmos-1267 carried was designed to continue the space exploration program, Tass said, without giving further explanation. Geoffrey Perry, who heads the Kettering Space Monitoring Group which bas built up a sound international reputation for monitoring space flights, said Saturday night that members of his group detected the satellite Saturday morning after it left Baikonur cosmodrome.

Japan to impose limit on car sales to U.S.

TOKYO, April 26 (AFP) - The heads of Japan's seven leading car manufacturing firms have broadly agreed to allow the government to decide by how much they should voluntarily restrict their exports to the United States, ministry sources have said.

Meanwhile, loternational Trade and Industry Minister Rokusuke Tanaka said Saturday that the government had won the manufacturers' "understanding" over its attempts to settle the growing dispute with the U.S. on auto exports.

Tanaka was speaking after separate meetings with top executives of the seven leading firms seeking their support for whatever commitments the government may make. The minister said he did not disclose to the industry any specific figures regarding the "preferred level" for the restraint or its duration. Informed sources said the government hoped to curtail shipments to about 1.7 million units a year, down seven per cent to the 1980 level, but this figure is unlikely to be accepted by domestic manufacturers.

Turkey that the underlying rate of inflatioo probably had been reduced to between 40 and 50 per cent by the end of 1980 after rising above 100 per cent earlier in the year. "Further improvement should be possible if the stated aims of fiscal, monetary and income policies are pursued energetically," it said

Turkey's economy is also expected to expand in 1981. The country's gross domestic product is predicted to grow by 3.25 per cent, after rising two per cent last year, provided that foreign credits are available to pay for essential supplies for industry. The current account deficit is bound to increase, bowever, because oil and supplies for industry have to be imported. The government puts the 1981 deficit at $3.5 billioo after a $3.9 billioo deficit in 1980, the OECD ooted.

With U.S. yet to evolve policy Oil glut may slow down IEA cooperation

PARIS, April 26 (AFP) - The world oil glut, expected to cause strains inside the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), could also spell problems in energy cooperation among Western oil importing nations, diplomatic sources here suggested at the weekend.

The easing of market tension caused by the war between Iran and Iraq was welcomed by diplomats associated with the work of the 21-nation International Energy Agency (IEA).

But privately, some officials voiced fears that this - combined with the new United States administratioo's failure so far to spell out any comprehensive energy policy could lead to a loss of momentum in IEA. cooperatioo. "You cannot really talk of American leadership in this field at present," one diplomat said in private.

It is readily recognized in quarters close to the IEA duat the Reagan administration's sweeping policy review requires some time.

But officials of several IEA delegations do not seem impressed by Washingtoo's decisions so far. "The decootrol of U.S. domestic oil prices will not solve all the problems", an expert commented.

Rivalries between U.S. government departments over responsibility for energy policy, have dooe little to reassure these quarters. The majority of IEA countries have, meanwhile, agreed on the oeed for an early ministerial meeting that would focus on long-term efforts to reduce the dependence on imported oil, now that the threat of short-

Dr. Ulf Lantzke, the IEA executive director, said at the weekend that such a meeting has been tentatively set in Paris for June 15, on the eve of the annual ministerial conference of the 24-nation Organization for Economie Cooperation and Development (OECD). The IEA groups all OECD countries except Finland, France and Iceland. In an interview, Dr. Lantzke said it might useful for IEA ministers to "reconfirm" agency's agreed loog-term coopera policies.

He also warned against reading too m into the reports on the current glut of c and declining OPEC prices, stressing OPEC's "spare (export) capacity" could 'wiped away from one day to another".

oppose any structure that would interfere with the market evolution of cotton prices. The Izmir group said at the last preparatory meeting in Geneva in March 1980 that it wanted price stabilization through an international buffer stock or internationally coordinated national stocks of cotton, or a combination of the two.

Under this scheme a buffer stock manager appointed by the International Cotton Council would buy up cotton if the market price fell below a certain level. He would sell an accumulated stocks if the price rose above another predetermined point, with the overall intention of keeping the price within agreed limits for the benefit of both users and suppliers.

The Soviet Union, second largest net exporter with 13 per cent of world trade, backs the Izmir group demands, but has sug-gested a price stabilization scheme of multilateral commitments backed by national stocks. Finland, Norway and Sweden, which together form a small but influential net importer of cotton, have joined the U.S. and Japan in opposing stocking measures. But in an informal proposal to the last session they said an international cotton organization should at least discuss possible solutions to price instability.

"The Izmir group is still very firm about the need for an effective agreement," the UNCTAD spokesman said. "It includes such countries as Chad, for instance, which relies on cotton for 60 per cent of its export earning." The European Economie Community (EEC), second largest importer after Japan will bold talks in Geneva Monday morning to coordinate the 10 member countries' positions before UNCTAD Commodities Chief Alister McIntyre formally opens the meeting.

About 20 million bales of cotton or 4.25 million tons are traded internationally every year and UNCTAD has designated it one of 18 commodities where the market should be stabilized mainly for the benefit of poorer producer countries.

JEDDAH, April 26 - With the European markets closed Sunday, the local financial markets had a quiet day as dealers covered temporary cash flow positions and dealt in the Bahrain markets. Riyal deposit rates had eased further by 1/2 per cent in all tenors by the end of the trading day.

Deposit rates opened at 14 14 - 14 1/2 per cent levels for one month and Bahrain was quoting 14 % - 14 ½ in the one year in the morning. By close, the one-month JIBOR rate had fallen to-13 1/4 - 14 1/4 per cent with the one year quoted at 14 - 141/2 per cent.

Trading was described as "thm", which meant little significant trading took place. The case in rival rates continued to reflect general market nervousness about how dollar interest rates would open on the European markets Monday, as well as uncertainties about the dollar being able to maintain its present strength on the exchanges. ### To ease transport Russia plans airship-tram

MOSCOW, April 26 (AFP) - Scientists bere believe that they can solve the transport problems of this vast country with the airship - invented before the Soviet Union was founded. But it will be a modernized and modified version of the kind used before World War I.

Scientists at UFA, in the Urals, envisage an airship-tram which would be three times cheaper than a plane and 15 times more than a helicopter. It would be 30 meters (98 feet) long and powered by three motors linked to an electric cable (powerline) on the ground. Cables would have to be laid along the airship's regular routes, but Ural technicians see no problems here.

They calculate that it would cost 20,000 rubles (about $15,000) per kilometer, which works out at five times less than a onekilometer stretch of road. In addition, its cargo capacity would be all that greater because the airship-train would not have to carry its own fuel. But this is just one idea out of many others. They spring from the recent call made by Dr. Andre Trofinchuk, a member of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, in a technical

He said that it could make a valuable contribution in opening up remote and inaccessible areas in Siberia and the Soviet far east. Roads and railways are often lacking in many parts of Siberia, and in most cases equipment and machinery are airlifted to the area to be developed, particularly in oil drilling and prospecting.

Hearns batters Shields

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey, April 26 (R) - Mathew Saad Muhammad of Philadelphia retained his World Boxing Council (WBC) light-heavyweight championship Saturday night, knocking out Scottish-born challenger Murray Sutherland in the ninth round.

Muhammad, defending his title for the seventh time, got off to a sluggish start and fought with a split-lip from the opening round. But he took control in the fifth round and wore out Sutherland.

The challenger, who was born in Edinburgh and now who lives in Bay City, Michigan, caught Muhammad early in the scheduled 15-round fight but ran out of stamina.

American League, West Division Kansas City should romp home winners again

By Cynthia Shanley

anabnews Sports

HOUSTON, April 26-There is nothing pretty about the American League West Division for the past few years. It has deteriorated into baseball's ugly division, a bona fide 94-pound weaking of the National League race." Kansas City and the Sick Six" is the title it was known last year. But a new year brings new hope for the beleagured AL West. Remodelling projects at California, Chicago and Texas appear to bave made those clubs legitimate contenders once again after all three took the gas

GEORGE BRETT, the best bet among the Kansas City outfuit.

The interesting thing is that Kansas City, the team that cakewalked to the title and eventually into the World Series, didn't improve itself during the off-season, but maybe the Royals didn't need to. Their 97-62 record in 1980 won by a mammoth 14 games.

And the only other team in the division to play over .500, Oakland at 83-79, may be hard pressed to match even that this season: Kansas City still looks like the biggest contender in the division this year. The everyday lineup the Royals put on the field is probably the best in the game. George Brett is the headliner, but the supporting cast is also marquee caliber. The Swiss never made a watch runs as smoothly as the K.C. infield and the only change in the 'outfield is Willie Nelson, the human jet, moving from left center, flip-flooping with Amos Otis.

What the rest of the West hopes is that the Royals will suffer at catcher after the defection of Darrell Porter, and that last year's sbocker, Dan Quisenberry, will finally crash-land in the bullpen. The Kansas city pitching staff is thin, which gives the competition in the West some bopes.

The California Angeles will put an awesome lineup on the field every night, but the pitching staff Jim Fregosi is saddled with, they might have to score 11 runs a game to win by one.-

Fred Lynn moves into center and Rick Burleson takes over at shortstop, meaning the All-star performers fill two gaping holes. They join the likes of Don Baylor, Bobby Grich, Rod Carew, Danny Ford, Brian Downing and Jason Thompson. But the Angeles must have some mirade from the pitching staff to challenge Kansas City.

WILLIE WILSON, the human jet, who should catch the eye for the Royals.

As usual, the Texas Rangers are set to open the season with what appears to be a solid team. But history tells us the Rangers never play up to expectations.

One reason for renewed optimism is that there's finally a conple of major-leaguecaliber shortstops on the roster, particularly Mario Mendoza, a very slick gloveman, Shortstop has been a wipe-out spot for the Rangers since Ray Smalley was traded in 1976.

Danny Darwin, possibly the best young pitcher in the league, is somebody to keep an eye on this season. New Manager Don Zimmer, the seventh manager in ten years for Texas, says Darwin will open the season in the starting rotation and remain there: In other words, no more bullpen work for the right-bander. That means a lot depends on Jim Kern's health, which makes the bullpen a continuing question for the Rangers.

MONDAY, APRIL 27, 1981

Oakland was a very big surprise last sea son under Billy Martin, but during the offseason the A's didn't improve their middle in-field defense, nor their bullpen. The starting pitchers, an impressive group, all did iron-man stints last season, but can these arms log all those innings again this year?

The A's outfield is one of baseball's best with Rickey Henderson, Duane Murphy and Tony Armas.

The Chicago White Sox have an excellent young pitching staff, but the team couldn't score and couldn't field last season. The offense should be much improved, what with Carlton Fisk, Ron LeFlore and Greg Luzinski the new additions, but defense will still be a severe problem.

Considering the talent on hand, a .500 season would be excellent for the Minnesota Twins, Tight-wad owner Calvin Griffith did dig deep enough over the winter to sign his two best players, Smalley and catcher Butch Wynegar, to long-term contracts.

The Seattle Mariners appear to have no chance of escaping the cellar, but things should get interesting in that little band box known as the Kingdome. Taking aim at the 357-foot power alleys this season will be Richie Zisk and Jeff Burroughs which means opposing pitchers are going to sweat any appearance in Seattle.

Is the system top quality? 2. Is it one of the best priced systems in the market? З. Is it three system compatible? Is there service and spare perts availability?

Chinese make clean sweep

NOVISAD, Yugoslavia, April 26 (AP) -Guo Ynehua beat Cai Zhenhua in four sets to become the new World Table Tennis champion in an all-Chinese final here Sunday. Guo, the runnerup in the last two championships, captured the title by beating Cai 21-14, 17-21, 21-14, 21-16.

The 25-year-old Guo, winner of the first World Cup, dominated the final except for a brief lapse in the second, set. Cai, the lefthanded 18-year old, pulled off some spectacular saves away from the table to thrill the crowd, but the experience of his older leam-mate made the difference.

Both players attacked furiously in most of the match which lasted just under 40 minutes. Guo was more consistent, made less unforced mistakes and was clearly on top to win the title which has eluded him in the last two championships when he lost the final matches despite being a heavy favorite.

Tong Ling, a 19-year-old defender, cap tured the women's title by defeating Cao Yanhua in five sets in another all-Chinese final.

RIYADH, April 26 (SPA) - Information Minister Dr. Muhammad Abdo Yamani Sunday welcomed the visit of the West German chancellor, Helmut Schmidt to Saudi Arabia, Dr. Yamani told SPA in an interview that the visit has its own special importance and comes within the preview of a series of prominent world leaders visits to the Kingdom that had been aiming at exchanging viewpoints with Saudi leaders on many issues of bilateral interest, mutual cooperation and international issues.

He said the Middle East and the Palestine cause would he on the top of the agenda of talks between the West German chancellor and too Saudi leaders. Dr. Yamani described Schmidt's visit at the invitation of Deputy Premier and Crown Prince Fahd as one of the most important visits in the context of West Germany's position in Europe and international economic arena. He said it is also important hecause of a distinct change of attitude as has been evident by the Europeaninitiative for finding a fair and peaceful solution for the Arab-Israel conflict. He said many changes have taken place since a visit to West Germany paid by King Khaled last year and also the friendly trip of Crown Prince Fahd to this friendly country a year before.

statutory deposits, thus relieving the pres-sure on bank liquidity and enabling them to. expand their credit to the private sector.

يدر باللغت الانحليزية

Another development of significant impor-tance for the economy of Saudi Arabia was the establishment of six governmentsponsored specialized credit institutions for advancing credit to different sectors of the economy. All of these institutions advance medium or long-term interest-free loans. The most important of these from the point of view of their impact on the development of the private sector have been the Saudi Industrial Development Fund (SIDF) and the Real Estate Development Fund (REDF).

The SIDF has so far financed 577 projects with a commitment of SR6.8 billion. By the end of the Second Plan, the SIDF had actually disbursed SR22.5 billion for financing various projects, including SR17.8 hillion to electricity companies.

The REDF on the other hand, had disbursed SR33 billion by the end of the Second Plan and this infusion of finance helped in the construction of at least 200,000 new houses and apartments during the Second Plan period. The external stability of the riyal posed a challenge because of unstable conditions in the international foreign exchange markets. During the entire decade of the 1960's the rival remained stable with respect to the dollar. However, when the dollar continued to weaken the Kingdom decided to severe the link of the rival with the dollar in 1975. Since then the policy has been to stabilize the exchange rate of the rival with respect to the SDR basket of currencies with a band of 7.25 per cent on either side of the SDR/ rival parity. Adherence to this policy has helped in stabilizing the rival and in isolating it from erratic movements in the exchange rate of major currencies. In all, the rival appreciated hy about 35 per cent against the dollar over the decade of the seventies. Transport and Communication

The transport and communications sector bas been nearly revolutionized hy rapid developments in response to need. The network of asphalted and rural roads has expanded by 13,148 and 20,699 kilometers to 21,585 and 24,186 kilometers, respectively. In the process, the various parts of the country have become interlinked. This has brought about a swifter and more economical movement of goods. Had it not been for the completion of many important and crucial highways, the heavy movement of goods required for fulfilling demand and removing shortages would have been difficult and inflationary pressures would have been exacerbated. The expansion of the road network in urban areas along with the construction of flyovers and clover-leaf has helped solve the problem of traffic jams. The development of the public transport system has also helped ease traffic on roads and highways. The expansion and improvement of the Dammam-Riyadh railroads has made a valuable contribution toward the movement of goods between the Eastern and the Central provinces. Not only has the number of airports in the Kingdom increased but there has also heen a continued expansion and improvement in their services which enabled the handling of millions of passengers over the decade. The airports also handled a large volume of cargo, thus contributing at least partly to an easing of the congestion at the seaports and on the roads. The number of piers at the Kingdom's ports has risen from a handful to 116 and is expected to reach 136 with the completion of the new piers under construction. Cargo unloaded at these ports rose dramatically from less than 2 million tons to about 46 million tons. The heavy congestion experienced at the Kingdom's main ports during 1975-76 was eliminated by the end of 1976 and the freight surcharge which had reached 100 per cent of base freight was gradually reduced and cancelled in Fehruary 1977. Agriculture and Water Resources In spite of the arid climate and scarcity of water the Kingdom has made a notable advance in agriculture. The government has built the necessary infrastructure including 50 dams along with irrigation and drainage networks and extensive road systems linking the agricultural areas with the consuming centers It has also provided the necessary incentives and agricultural extension services. Subsidies have been provided on essential inputs as well as certain outputs. The Agricultural Bank and the Saudi Industrial Development Fund have provided financing for purchasing farm equipment and establishing food processing industries. Total real value added by agriculture, forestry and fishing has risen over the decade at the rate of about 4.5 pre per cent per annum.

The area where a substantial headway has been made is urban water supply. This has involved the establishment of 16 desalination plants, digging and maintenance of 1,758 wells, and construction or extension of 387 purification plants and distribution networks. The total capacity of the desalination plants has risen to 47.3 million gallons of water per day and 331 megawatts of electricity.

Commerce, Industry and Electricity

Industrial development in the Kingdom has been satisfactory even though only a small proportion of the country's needs came from domestic production. By the end of 1399, about 838 industrial projects out of 1.638 approved hy the government, were in operation. Real value added by the non-oil manufacturing sector rose from SR 431 million in 1389/90 to SR 1,500 million in 1399/ 1400, a growth of 13 per cent per annum which may be considered a remarkable achievement in a country where, up until recently, private capital was shy to enter the industrial sector, protective tariffs have been used to a minimum extent, and manpower shortages have been discouraging. The major credit goes to the encouragement provided by the government.

The Kingdom's industrialization drive is, however being spearheaded by the government through large-scale petrochemical and metallurgical projects of SABIC and the refinery and pipeline projects of Petromin, supported by infrastructure development under the Royal Commission for Juhail and Yanbu. For this purpose the plan provides for an expenditure of SR 25.6 billion hy SABIC, SR 27.7 hillion by Petromin and SR 45.7 billion by the Royal Commission. SABIC bas already concluded final agreements for the construction of five large petrochemical projects, for in Jubail, and one in Yanhu. It has also finalized three major joint-ventures in the metallurgical field. It is expected to conclude further agreements for petrochemical development. The electric utilities sector has accomplished a phenomenal expansion over the decade. Total capacity which was merely 244 megawatts in 1390 rose to 6,527 megawatts in 1400. Total electricity sold rose from a little over half a billion kilowatt hours to 18 hillion kilowatt hours. The number of subscribers rose from 200,543 to 824,000 during the decade but sales per customer rose more than seven times from 2,868 kwh to 21,930 kwh. The Third Plan target for electric generating capacity is 15,320 megawatts to meet the demand from 1.3 million subscrib-

and the size of enrolment but also with the quality of education, and curricula are being continuously revised and streamlined accordingly. The number of schools has trebled over the decade from 2,422 in 1389/90 to 7,575 in 1399/1400, and so has the number of university faculties, from 18 to 54. The number of students at all levels of education as risen from about half a million to 1.5 million.

Health facilities have also expanded considerahly in keeping with the government's policy of providing medical care free to those in need. The number of hospitals has increased from 47 to 70, and of hospital beds from 6,787 to 12,525,. In addition to these there are dispensaries and health centers, the number of which has risen from 492 to 825. Other government ministries (Education, Defense and Interior) and departments (National Guards, Red Crescent and King Faisal Specialist Hospital) provided health facilities which are not included in the above figures. The government is consicious of the inadequacy of healthy facilities in the country and great emphasis has been given to this sector in the Third Plan which proposes to increase the number of hospital beds to 2.2 per 1,000 citiznes. Toward this end the ministry of health plans to establish 36 new hospitals with 7,550 beds, and 300 centers for primary medical care.

The Third Development Plan The Third Plan for the five-year period 1400/01 to 1404/05 (1980/81-1984/85) places principal emphasis on: (1) Developing the productive sectors of the economy to reduce the country's heavy dependence on oil exports and (2) effectively increasing the productivity of Saudi Arabia manpower to reduce the dependence on expatriate labor. As compared with this, the major emphasis of the first two plans was on huilding the basic infrastructures to remove bottlenecks and to increase the country's absorptive capacity. The total spending envisaged during the Third Plan period is SR 783 hillion for the public sector, excluding transfer payments, foreign aid and national defense of this total, development spending will be SR 702 hillion or about 90 per cent, and the halance of about 10 per cent will he for administration, local

لأثنين ٢٢ حماد الثاني

The American press has been riding high these last few years. The Watergate affair showed how even a president could be stalked and then successfully scalped by the newspapers. The Jimmy Carter Administration also had to surrender a few senior officials as sacrifice to appease the press.

But now the tide is on the turn. Or, at least this is what the Reagan Administration would like to see. The incumbent is no darling of the national press, and the press, it appears, is not exactly the apple of his eye. In fact he has already commissioned a report on how to cut the press down to size, and the recommendations are bound to drive editors to despair.

Television, the report says, ought to be simply cold-shouldered. "Frasterniza-tion" between White House staff and iournalists is to cease. And journalists seeking information will be given just that: reams and reams of statistics and abstract data of all sorts. No comments or anything like that. Just abstract technicalities which only the experts can make head or tail of.

The American press, one is certain, is already preparing its countermoves. But what came most to mind as I read the reports from America was how lucky the press there is, how successful it is, so that those in power see the need to take it down a peg. As to the press in our lands ...

Sands rejects mediation offer

BELFAST. April 26 (Agencies) - Jailed Irish Republican guerrilla Bobby Sands, now in the 57th duy of a hunger strike, has rejected an offer of help from the European Human Rights Commission. He dismissed their intervention as confusing and said that his sister Marcella was misled by Irish Republic Prime Minister Charles Haughey into believing the commission would deliver protesting Republican prisoners' demands. Two commissioners, Carl Aage Norgaard of Denmark and Torkel Opsahl of Norway, spent eight hours in the Maze prison outside Belfast Saturday but left without seeing Sands, who friends say is close to death.

Sands, elected 10 the British Parliament two weeks ago, said his hunger strike and that of three fellow prisoners, who have been fasting for up to 43 days, would continue unless their demands for political prisoner status were met. The British government, which says convicted guerrillas are no different from common criminals, has said it will not conceded the demands.

Sands did say he was prepared to meet the human rights representatives but only if they were accompanied by three prominent Republicans. This appeared to be the stumhl-ing block to a meeting and the commissioners said that under the circumstances they were not able 10 confer with Sands. Haughey said he had learned with "both regret and disappointment," that the delegation's visit appeared to have been unsuccessful.

It may be concluded that over the decade of the first two plans, the Kingdom has crossed a number of crucial landmarks in its recent economic history. Per capita real income has more than doubled and the statdard of living of all sectors of the population has improved considerably. Most of basic amenities of life have become
